

CELL PHONE CONTACTS

Have you ever thought about how you list your friends and family in your cell phone? If not, think about this: Your purse or wallet gets stolen along with your cell phone. Next thing you know, your significant other gets a text message saying you forgot your PIN for your debit card. Guess what?... I think you can figure the rest out.

You've already been robbed once; don't get robbed again and again. Protect yourself further by simply making sure you don't bring attention to your significant other. If you do and your debit/credit card gets stolen with your cell phone, you may find your bank account emptied. In addition, a thief can wreak havoc on your life if they know who your friends and family members are. So, protect them, too...
