

REMOVE IT OR LOSE IT, and THEN SOME!

Do you leave your GPS unit on your vehicle's dash? Your laptop computer on the seat? Your garage door opener overnight? If so, you may not only have your vehicle targeted for a burglary but targeted for bigger things. How?

3 quick scenarios: Your laptop gets taken along with any personal information on it. Does the term Identity Theft come to mind? A burglar sees your garage door opener in your car, breaks in to your car, and then opens the garage door. Guess where the burglar is going next? What if you are home when that happens? Do you keep your inner garage door locked and is the lock sufficient? And, third, a burglar gets your GPS unit while you are out to eat or watching a football game. Guess where the burglar can trace back to using that GPS unit? That's right, your home, and the burglar has a pretty good idea how long they can stay in your house before you'll be getting home.

Forget about the little things a burglar can get from your car. Just imagine what else they can get if you give them the opportunity! Again, REMOVE IT OR LOSE IT, and THEN SOME!
